Creek – Coffee table
Design by Nendo

Creek is a table that suggests a stream of water flowing freely across its surface and around islands, circling around the table tops placed in opposite corners.

The tables come in five different sizes and shapes and when placed alongside one another, their islands connect like a jigsaw puzzle and the stream seems to run from one table over to the next. As such, the tables were designed as both small individual tables and as stand-alone elements that may be combined to form a single large table.
